Bryan Hay is senior writer and media relations associate in Lafayette College's Communications Division. Before that, he worked as a senior communications specialist at PPL Corp. and started his career as a reporter for The Morning Call, covering breaking news, municipal government and the performing arts. A graduate of Moravian College, with a degree in journalism and a concentration in music, he is a professional trombonist and plays with the Mainstreet Brass, the Silver & Brass Trombone Quartet and other local and regional ensembles. He also sings in the bass section of the Bach Choir of Bethlehem and serves on the board of directors of the Mendelssohn Chorus of Philadelphia.
